MAKE IT WORK EFFICIENT

Head of Materials & Processes (m/f/d)

These are your tasks:

- You will take over the technical and disciplinary management of the employees assigned to you and you are responsible for employees' qualifications and development.
- You will plan and monitor the Material & Processes capacities to ensure the on-time, on-cost and quality-based development, qualification and introduction into serial production of new materials, manufacturing processes and standard parts.
- You will be responsible for the creation and maintenance of the DIEHL Aviation internal material standards and standard parts.
- You will be responsible for material & processes related tasks within the product development process within the strategic business unit Cabin Interiors of Diehl TK Aviation.
- You support the internal stakeholders by ensuring the material & processes deliverables to achieve their targets and goals.

Who we are looking for:

- You have successfully completed a degree as an engineer in the field of aircraft construction, plastics technology with a specialization in process technology or a comparable qualification.
- You have several years of experience in the development of materials and manufacturing processes, ideally in the field of lightweight design and composites manufacturing.
- You have very good knowledge of the product development process of the aviation industry.
- You have already led a team and have a cooperative and outcome-orientated way of working.
- You have a good command of English, both written and spoken, and you are able to provide professional guidance and support to our colleagues in Hungary and Mexico.
